Ker Remen, future Prophet of Truth from his Assault Carrier watched the massive ongoing fleet. Searching for the treasure of their gods. "Brothers!" he yelled, " we are to stop at the next planet we find and order a full scale excavation." Hod Rumnt future Prophet of Mercy came and said, "No! We mustn't! We are receiving weak transmissions of another species. If they are barbaric they only cause war, and further impede our progress." Sar Nane future Prophet of Regret quickly interrupted and said, " We have found the planet!" All three Prophets looked to the view screen. Staring at the planet with awe, but then a video transmission appeared. An Elite clad in armour made of iron said, "Turn back or perish! We will not give you our home until everyone of us on the battlefield and is at the mercy of the scavengers!" A roar of dignity blasted from the screen. Ker replied, "Dear sir, of the planet we only here search your planet for-" the Elite barged in and yelled, "No you cannot just go and excavate our whole planet! You must go through us for your impotent needs!" "That is it!" blurted Sar, "Ker, Hod there is a time for thought and a time for action! The action is going to start now!" "Yes" Hod replied, "Ker order troops for battle!" "Of course!" replied Ker, "these barbarians are going to taste their own blood!" The order was sent the carriers filed down to the planet in a line thinking they could pull off a ambush. But the Elites were smarter than that.
